

ABSTRACT

An information collection method and apparatus retrieves, stores, and interactively displays block-oriented text and image information from broadcasting television video; by analyzing the information screen images from the video source providers on selected channels, with the unilateral processing at the viewer end alone. Also, the present invention provides a method for the video source providers to supply additional information with special image patterns in selected screen areas.